Use of cookies

Below is a detailed list of the cookies we use on this application. We classify the use of cookies into the following categories: [(1) necessary]. You can find more information about each category in the relevant sections below. For each cookie listed below, we also note the duration of the cookie and identify whether it is a first party or third party cookie. Please note:

'First party' cookies are directly stored by the website (or domain) you visit. These cookies allow website owners to collect analytics data, remember language settings, and perform other useful functions that provide a good user experience.

These are usually used for analytics and/or online-advertising purposes and placed on a website through scripts or tags. A third-party cookie is accessible on any website that loads the third party server's code.
